

RD 16 - PREVIEW

MOLTEN VICTORIAN YOUTH CHAMPIONSHIP WOMEN

Sandringham has successfully claimed top spot of the Terrell Conference and will look to take momentum into finals with a win against Hume City. The Broncos on the other hand will be playing for pride as their season has finished disappointingly.

Altona can climb into a home final if they beat Ballarat and other results go their way. They should get past the Rush, however they could be facing relegation and may have added motivation.

Melbourne will have a key tune up when they face Bendigo on Saturday night. Both sides will play finals so it should be a good contest.

Ringwood and Nunawading will face off in what is set-up to be a janus-faced game. The Hawks can put points on the board in bunches, while Nunawading's defence has been stingy throughout the year. If the Spectres win the game they will cement their second spot in Terrill and will host Ringwood in the first round of the playoffs.

The Hawks will play again on Sunday, visiting Diamond Valley. The Eagles have had a less than impressive season and will no doubt be looking to claim a scalp in this one.

Dandenong has had a terrific year and will look to make it to 20 wins for the season when they play Waverley. It would be a fantastic achievement for the Rangers.

They will have another opportunity to get to the monumental mark against Hawthorn on Sunday. The Magic sadly has no chance of making the finals, only just missing out.

Bendigo and Ballarat will face off on Sunday for another edition of the battle of the bush. Keep an eye on Bendigo's Jessie Rennie if she plays, she had 25 points last time these two teams met.

Bulleen and Eltham will face off in a bottom of the table clash. Both sides currently sit last in their conference, but could have a lot to play for in this one. The loser has the potential of being relegated.

The final game of the weekend will see Kilsyth face off against Hume City. Both sides are no chance of playing finals, so we could see some younger players get some serious court time in this one, who will step up?
