

Ringwood look to be on the charge, and this week will face Hume City. The Broncos started the season off well, however have had some struggles of late. This should be an interesting contest, playing on their home floor may give Hume City the advantage, however the Hawks are very, very strong.

Bulleen may have a tough Saturday night, hosting Dandenong. The Boomers have struggled after making the grand final in 2016. The Rangers will still have to be on their toes, as Bulleen have the potential to cause an upset.

Kilsyth's first leg of their double-header is against Nunawading. Keeley Frawley almost managed a triple-double last weekend for the Spectres, the Cobras will need to limit her impact if they are a chance of winning. On Sunday they travel to Diamond Valley. This should be a tight and physical affair. The Cobras may be looking to recover from the night before, so will be pushing hard for a win.

Bendigo had a mixed weekend in round eight, and on Saturday travel to Knox. They will have to lock down one of the league's best, Leah Santomaggio, if they want to overcome the Raiders. Knox will continue their push up the ladder, playing again on Sunday. They host a struggling Ballarat side, a team that they should knock off.

Hawthorn look to be on the improve, splitting their double-header last weekend. They should face a tough battle this week, going to battle with the Mikaela Miller, and Grace Beasley led Waverley Falcons.

Altona and Eltham have the early wake up, matching up at 11am on Sunday morning. The gators have won five games straight and look to be flying; it might be difficult for the Wildcats to stop them.

Nunawading is another side that have a double-header this weekend. On Sunday they host Bulleen. The Boomers took the win in their last match-up, however it's doubtful the Spectres will let that happen again.

Melbourne have had limited players suit up for them in the past few weeks, however have still managed to get some wins on the board. This week they play a Sandringham outfit that have proven strong. These two clubs have been known to be rivals in the past, thus it should be a great game.
